ARENDT, MILLER AND BENDERVILLE WITHOUT LICENSED BAR

Benderville is in the Balance with a Good Chance of Going Dry.

The annual license court was held by President Judge D. P. McPherson and Associate Judges W. Howard Dicks and E. P. Miller Friday of last week. The routine was followed by having counsel of applicants present the petitions and as presented were put aside until the judges could confer.

The first application contested and to be heard was that of Jeremiah Winter for the hotel in Arendtsville. C. S. Duncan, Esq., represented the applicant and Wm. Arch. McClean, Esq., those who were opposing the granting of the license. In November Aaron Schlosser had made an application to transfer the old license to Jere Winter, and for some reason the matter was dropped and the bar was closed and the town had been dry since early part of November. The applicant on the witness stand admitted that he held a license for a bar at Franklinton, York county, which did not expire until Jan. 31. The opposition to the license called attention to the fact that the application for new license was filed early in November, at the same time the transfer was sought. That there were but 15 signers on the papers and since the signing, two of the signers had removed from Biglerville, that another signer spent nine or ten months of each year in Florida and was not such a resident who was acquainted with the necessity of the place. A paper was handed the court with the names of four signers, saying that since their town had been dry they had reason to change their views as to the necessity and desired to have their names removed from petition. This left the application with only eight names, two-thirds of the number required by law.

When the court announced their decision in the afternoon, the license was refused at Arendtsville.

The next contest was that of William H. Proom for the hotel in Biglerville. Proom had been filed large, named against the necessity of hotel and with other objections. A technical exception was made to this petition that it did not contain the name of the owner of the hotel, and the law required the petition to contain such a statement. It was explained to the court that when the petition was filed the name was left blank, name not being known, and that applicant was called on the phone to hold of the omission. He was called by Wm. H. Hersh and J. D. S. Esqs. The applicant testified that he paid a paper to the agent with name of S. V. Buckman as owner and expected the petition to be filed in on the type-write. When petition was filed the insertion had not been made and the piece of paper was not attached. The court held the omission to be a fatal defect and the license was refused. The representative was represented by John D. Keith and Chas. E. Stahle, Esqs.

A third license was refused, being that of Benjamin P. Shank for York Springs. The court had adjudicated two years ago that there was no necessity in that borough for more than one hotel. There was nothing in the application to change that conclusion and the license was refused.

The last license to be contested was that of Frank R. Bauman for the hotel in Benderville, and the sessions of the court on Friday and Saturday were attended by a large number of people from that borough and the upper part of the county. A number of witnesses called by the applicant declared that there was no necessity for the place as frequented by several persons who were known to indulge too freely in liquors and the witnesses went so far as to say that the applicant was not a fit person to be licensed if he sold to those people who should not be allowed to drink. The case was continued Saturday afternoon until Friday of this week. Judge McPherson holding court in Fulton county first part of this week. No testimony of the respondents has yet been taken but the indications are that if proof is made of sales by the applicant to the several parties who the witnesses of the applicant say he should not sell to, that the applicant has turned himself out of court. The applicant was represented by Wm. Hersh, Esq., and the respondent by John D. Keith and Chas. E. Stahle, Esqs.

Twenty-eight licenses were granted on Friday of last week a fewer number than for very many years.

As to the Gettysburg applications Associate Judge E. P. Miller filed the following dissenting opinion:

"I do not join in this decree because the applicant has not shown to this court that the license is necessary except his petition that is signed by certain persons but is not sworn to by them. This license should not be granted unless the court is convinced that it is necessary to accommodate the public who desire to drink and are entitled to drink. There is no presumption in favor of this application because the law is that the burden is on the applicant to prove its necessity. During a part of the last year this hotel and every other licensed place in Gettysburg was closed by the Government. This hotel and all of the others had been licensed by this court because they were necessary. I did not join in granting them. While they were closed there were more people in Gettysburg than there ever were before for such a long time. The traveling public was large as ever. The hotels were all crowded. I have not heard of any inconvenience that was caused by the closing of this barroom and no proof has been given to us in court. If inconvenience was not caused by its being closed then it seems to me that convenience does not demand that it be licensed and much less that there be necessity for it. I understand that my judicial discretion in granting licenses is to be exercised primarily for the public good, but if clear necessity is not shown I cannot believe the public good requires that Gettysburg must have seven licensed barrooms."

As to the licenses in the county Associate Judge Miller filed the following dissenting opinion:

"I do not join in this decree because the applicant has not offered any proof that this license is necessary. He has filed a petition signed by certain persons who have not sworn to it. Necessity, as I understand the law, must be shown to us and we need not presume it and because the burden is on the applicant to prove necessity I do not feel justified in presuming it."

"This court can not overlook the change that has lately gone over nearly the whole world on the subject of drinking and ought not presume necessity now—just because a year or years ago this place was necessary. Until it is shown to me by some real proof that the license is necessary, I cannot join in the decree."

Dr. Dickson Gets Commission.

Dr. J. McCrea Dickson received on Tuesday his commission from the War Department as a first lieutenant in the U. S. Medical Officers' Reserve Corps. No time has been set for Dr. Dickson to report for active duty and until he is notified further he will continue his practice here.

PARS LUR AU'S 1918 PLANS PERSONAL POINTS OF VIEW

MORE PORK—BETTER SEED COMINGS AND GOINGS INTO AND OUT OF THE TOWN.

Conservation of Manure Will be the Major Projects of the Year.

A meeting of the Executive Committee of the Farm Bureau was held in J. L. Butt's office on Thursday afternoon to outline and formulate plans for the coming season's work. Those in attendance were J. L. Butt, Gettysburg; Edward Strausbaugh, Orrtanna; C. A. Hershey, McKnightstown; Elmer Buckey, Littlestown; Parker Myers, York Springs; C. J. Tyson, Flora Dale; and Prof. H. Milton Roth, Gettysburg. Mr. E. K. Hibbsman, of State College, was also present and helped to outline the work.

The work was outlined with special reference to the needs of the country in war time and at the same time planning for work that will put the counties' agriculture on a better permanent basis whether in war or peace times. Four major projects were decided on and the county agent instructed to spend a great deal of his time on these. The first is, "A greater production of pork," having in mind the more economical production of pork by the use of forage crops. It is planned to secure several farmers throughout the county to raise hogs by the use of forage crops and then hold meetings later in the summer to show what may be done along these lines.

The Executive Committee also decided that the County Agent should make a seed corn survey. There is so much corn in the county and throughout the country that will not be fit for seed this year that it will be a national problem to secure enough seed corn for planting next spring. Prof. Roth's work among the public school children was heartily endorsed and the county agent will co-operate with him in that work. The county has been divided by soil types into districts and it is planned to conduct variety tests of corn to endeavor to locate the highest yields on the different types.

The better care of farm manures was also considered of prime importance. Commercial fertilizers are very high in price and hard to get and many of the fertilizing elements can be saved by the better care of manure and by hauling it out on the fields as soon as made. This will be handled through the mediums of meetings which are to be held throughout the month of February and early March. These four projects are the major projects decided on as the most needful ones for Adams county.

Quite a number of minor projects were decided upon and the County Agent will give as much time to them as possible. Under livestock would come the starting of pig clubs; a campaign for more sheep; steer feeding demonstrations similar to those held in Lancaster county, one of which was attended last fall by a number of our feeders; a balanced ration campaign for the production of more milk. Under farm crops was listed projects on the control of scab, also the spraying of potatoes for the control of blight. It is also planned to help out on the detailed orchard survey which is to be made of Adams county and the whole South Mountain District. At the same time it is planned to put on several experiments for the control of diseases and insects of apples with special reference to Frog-eye fungus and leaf spot which was so destructive in some orchards last season. The committee also decided upon several general minor projects one of which was the control of insects in stored grain. Every year large losses occur in wheat which is stored in bins due to insects working on it and it is planned to hold several demonstrations to show methods for their control. It is planned to have some farmers throughout the county keep farm records by simple methods under the advice of the county agent and with books that will be furnished by the Farm Bureau. Most farmers do not keep books and many would undoubtedly do so if some simple method were provided.

The Executive Committee had in mind when outlining this program a better and more permanent system of agriculture for the county and at the same time greater production at this crisis in our national affairs.

New Teacher at High School.

At the meeting of the Gettysburg School Board on Thursday evening Miss Margaret Marker of Warren, Pa., was elected to a position on the High School Faculty. Miss Marker will take charge of the Commercial Course which formerly was under the direction of Prof. Sunderland who enlisted in the army some weeks ago. Miss Marker will arrive in town on Saturday and will commence her work with the opening of school on Monday.

The quarantine will last twenty-six days and during that time a number of the town people who are interested in Red Cross work have arranged to provide the meals for the boys. The observatory building has been recently remodeled and fitted out as an infirmary for the treatment of any contagious diseases that might develop among the students.

BIG PATRIOTIC MEETING.

British Officer Makes a Stirring Address.

The patriotic meeting in Gettysburg on Tuesday evening was most unusual in the crowd that packed the court room. It certainly was a demonstration of the patriotic disposition of our people and the appeals of the speaker stirred the audience to vigorous applause again and again.

The meeting was locally arranged by Chas. E. Stahle, local chairman of the War Speakers Bureau, and Wesley Heyner, Executive Secretary of the Bureau of Public Speakers for the Pennsylvania Committee of Public Safety explained the purpose of these meetings to inform the people of actual conditions facing the nation by reason of the War.

Lieutenant Hector MacQuarrie, a British Army hero, recently from the front in France, made a rattling good address. Leaving Cambridge University he trained for the army, was wounded in the battle of Ypres and upon recovery sent to United States to inspect gun supplies. His story was largely how England unprepared had rushed into the war and helped France to drive back the Hun, as illustrative of what this country unprepared was now facing but having the experience of England to avoid mistakes of this country. He was a thrilling speaker in an address which was well received by the crowd. He pointed out the dangers of the home front, especially the need for food, clothing and shelter, and the need for the home front to be as efficient as the front in France. He said that the person who says England is done, France exhausted, Russia has quit, and Italy giving way, is working for Germany, and declared that the allies were going to win the war.

Woman Suffrage.

The resolution adopted by the House on Thursday of last week is as follows:

Joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States extending the right of suffrage to women. Resolved by the Senate and House, etc., two-thirds of each house concurring therein, that the following article be proposed to the Legislatures of the several States as an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which when ratified by three-fourths of said Legislatures shall be valid as part of said Constitution, namely:

Article—Section 1—The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex. Section 2—Congress shall have power, by appropriate legislation to enforce the provisions of this article.

The resolution passed by vote of 274 to 136, two more than the required two-thirds.

The resolution will go to the Senate and the indications are will pass that body in a short time. When that is accomplished it will go to legislatures of the States and thirty-six States approving equal suffrage will become a law. With about one-third of the States having suffrage and casting a few short of two hundred votes in the electoral college of 534 votes, the wisdom of getting in line before the next presidential year is going to convince many legislatures and in this year and next year all the legislatures will meet.

Conservation of Fuel.

Mrs. W. A. Granville, chairman of the woman's division of the Adams County Public Safety Committee, requests publication of the following:

"A serious crisis has resulted in a great shortage in the coal supply for Pennsylvania, and in the suffering of many men, women and children, who are unable to obtain heat and light."

"Owing to this lack of coal gas has been substituted for heating purposes in many houses, and as a result a shortage of gas is threatened."

"All patriotic women are urged to show the same spirit of interest and self-denial in the Conservation of Fuel as they have so splendidly shown in the Conservation of Food. They are urged to use caution as follows:

"No gas should be used in the daytime except for the purpose of cooking, or where illumination is needed for work, or where fuel for heat is lacking. No light should be burned in unoccupied rooms or hall-ways. No houses or buildings should be over-heated. Warm clothing should be worn and high temperatures modified. Women's organizations and public-spirited individuals should unite in urging that all nights should be lightless as long as the present emergency endures."

PARENT TEACHER MEETING

DR. VALENTINE MAKES ADDRESS ON READING OF BOOKS.

Interesting Reports of Visits to the Schools, and Use to be Made of Leisure of Boys.

The Parent-Teachers' Association had a most successful meeting on Friday evening notwithstanding the very stormy night, the attendance being very good. Mrs. H. T. Weaver, president, called the meeting to order and the High School Orchestra opened the program with a selection. The minutes of previous meeting were read by the Secretary, Miss Nellie Blocher. Master Henry Scharf entertained with a violin solo excellently rendered.

Dr. M. H. Valentine made a very interesting address, on the work of the home and school in helping to place in the hands the best fiction. An organization such as the Parent-Teachers could be most helpful to see to it that the children be given the best literature. In the mass of books printed there is so much with no ideals, no morals, many giving false ideals or making vice attractive. The young people need guiding hands in the selection of their books.

Miss Elizabeth Rummel made a report of the State Principals' meeting attended in Johnstown and how teachers were glad to hear of the development in this place of the Parent-Teachers' Association.

Charles Hartman gave an interesting talk of the way the leisure time of children can be best occupied. He believed the greatest need in this place for the children was a good gymnasium. Parents should give a certain portion of their time to the studies of their children. It would recall many things that had been forgotten with the up-to-date methods of teaching the same subject. He called attention to the proposed bill in Congress to give all boys at nineteen years of age six months of military drill and believed that this would be an excellent step and when established would take care of a portion of the leisure time of children.

The Eighth Grade gave a patriotic exercise and Mrs. Roy Zinn closed the program with a song and replied to the encore.

Mrs. Emory Plank made the report of the Visiting Committee, who praised the conditions found in all the school rooms. It was reported that in some of the schools children had wraps and overshoes on. That the rooms were warm enough to dispense with them but the youngsters gave the excuse of saving time when school was let out. The committee thought the parents should impress upon their children that wraps should be removed.

The following committees were appointed for the month:

Program: Charles Hartman, Miss Blanche Stoops, Mrs. J. B. Baker.
Visiting: Mrs. W. A. Burgoon, Mrs. R. C. Miller, Mrs. George P. Black, Mrs. Charles W. Gardner and Mrs. A. Z. Rogers.

The Coming Dryness.

As soon as the legislatures in thirty-six States have ratified the proposed amendment to the United States Constitution prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors, the amendment will become law and within one year after the amendment becomes law booze will be dead and buried. All the indications point to an adoption of the amendment by three-fourths of the States in 1918 and 1919, so that booze may have a lingering last illness of over two years. One of the signs of the times is the action of the States already having ratified the amendment.

1. Mississippi, Jan. 8th.
2. Virginia, Jan. 14th.
3. Kentucky, Feb. 14th.

NOTE: That in Kentucky the vote in Senate in favor of the amendment and against booze was 20 to 9 and in the House 60 to 10.

Annual D. A. R. Colonial Tea.

At the regular monthly meeting on Saturday the ladies of the D. A. R. decided to have their annual Washington's Birthday Tea on Friday evening, February 22, in the Gettysburg Academy building on Carlisle street.

The Chapter has established the custom of annually offering a prize for the best essay on an historical subject written by a student from the Junior or Senior classes of the Gettysburg High School. The subject selected for this year's contest is "The Beginning of Self-government in America."

Members of the Chapter to date have subscribed for more than $13,000 of Liberty Bonds of the First and Second issues.

—Miss Ruth Lerew, of Orrtanna, visited at the home of Mrs. H. L. Trostle, York street, this week.

—Miss Lucy Tawney, South street, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Perry Tawney, at their home in Harrisburg.

—E. S. Faber, Chambersburg street, has returned from a trip to Wilmington, Del., where he visited his son, Edgar M. Faber.

According to Budget

By Jane O'Connell

When Morton Blum, who had been married a year and was seriously happy in his struggle to marry with his blue-eyed little wife, seated himself in his favorite easy chair with a volume of his favorite author and his favorite pipe, preparatory to enjoying for the evening all the happiness of bachelor life rolled into one with the contentment of married life, there was blue-eyed Peggy on the other side of the table with a flat, oblong book that had a new look to it. Peggy opened it with care and pressed the covers back as one does with a book that has never been opened before.

It was the budget book. "Angelica has been here today," Peggy announced, "and she brought this—it's such a wonderful idea! Morton, did you ever hear of a budget? I never had, but Angelica explained what it means and here is the book. She has made a special study of house-keeping, you know."

"But what does Angelica know about making men happy in their homes?" queried Morton, who had not altogether pleasant mental image of Peggy's tall, angular, many-degreed cousin, who seemed to be so fond of putting ideas into Peggy's head as Peggy was of sponging them up. "What does she know about real home making?"

"Oh, she knows a great deal," insisted Peggy. "And she says that the reason why so many people aren't happy is because the wives aren't business-like and don't apply the same methods to housekeeping that men do to their businesses. Angelica would make some man wonderfully happy."

"Did she tell you that, too?" asked Morton, puffing on his pipe viciously.

"Yes, only, of course, she is so busy telling other women how to make their homes happy that she doesn't have time. Well, she brought me this budget book and I am to put down in these little columns just what I spend each day—see, here's a place for bread and one for butter and another for meat and fish, and all the things we eat, and here's one for ice and one for help and carfare and light and things like that—Angelica says you call those last ones operating expenses. It is the first of the month, so I started right in. See, I bought some face powder at the drug store and I put that down under medicine, and the two dollars for the laundress—that goes under help. Every time you give me anything that goes in here under receipts. And every week I am to balance it both ways so I can tell at a glance just how much I am spending for every different sort of thing—and in the front of the book there is a table telling how much we ought to spend for things and if I'm spending too much for any one thing then we'll know it and can stop making that mistake. Angelica says she will help me balance and figure out the percentages—I never could do percentages."

"You don't mean that Angelica is going to keep tabs on our household expenses?" gasped Morton.

"Oh, you mustn't mind that. She helps lots of young married girls—she says she is helping them to make their husbands happy and contented. That is her life work. She started doing it only for the poor people in the settlement, but she has discovered that people comfortably off need help just as much. And so I started right away, but I can't finish till you tell me your part of it. Here's a place for 'man's lunch' and another for 'carfare,' that you must tell me, and every day you must tell me how much you have spent for magazines or papers—that goes under 'improvements,' and if you give something to a beggar you must tell me so I can put it down under 'Church and Charity.'"

"Every night I will ask you so you won't forget anything. Angelica has been helping one young couple and they haven't been a cent out of the way since they began. The husband remembers every tiny thing he spends and he is so happy just on account of it."

Morton sported inwardly and had some rather sinister thoughts regarding Angelica and her missionary enterprise. "Is there a definite percentage for the amount of tobacco a husband can use?"

"Yes, indeed—but the book says that one of the things the young people ought to strive to do is to divert that money—these are the words the book uses—into other more worthwhile channels, such as lecture courses, the purchase of an encyclopedia or a beautiful work of art. Don't you think Angelica is doing a wonderful work?"

"Yes, quite wonderful, not to say remarkable, phenomenal and epoch-making," said Morton, and Peggy was satisfied.

Every night for a month thereafter Morton was obliged to confess just how much he spent on luncheon, shoe-shines, cigars and tobacco, and even had to admit that he lost a dollar on a bet one day and gained two dollars the next, though Peggy hadn't any idea where to enter these items and finally decided on putting the dollar down under "miscellaneous interest" because she hadn't anything else for that column, and entered the other supply "cash received."

Angelica had promised to help Peggy with the percentages and correct their budget at the end of the following month, and Morton was casting about in his mind for a way of defeating her in her purpose. One night early in the second month of their budgeting, he told his wife he had met an interesting old school friend of his who had a collection of books in his library. He was trying to help the men he knew to get their wives in love and to help them to get a system which as he told him had published. It was, said Morton, the theory of this man that the most worthwhile thing in life was not money. Money was incidental. One's happiness did not depend on the amount of money one had so why take pains to conserve it? The things that counted were the words one spoke, the smiles and tears and sighs and laughter. It was as folk use these real things of life that they were either happy or unhappy. For instance, if a man laughs only when his wife hits her thumb with a hammer or when he sees a cat with a tin can on the end of its tail, he is pretty sure to make himself and his associates unhappy.

The woman who spends two hours every morning gossiping with a neighbor about another neighbor's divorce case is wasting her time and cheating her husband because a woman's words belong as much to her husband as a man's savings belong to his wife.

Peggy listened intently to the explanation, and seemed enthralled. So far, was she from suspecting Morton's scheme that she even suggested that Angelica would like to meet the stranger, and went off into a very pleasant brown study as she thought that possibly a match might be made between these two workers for humanity's happiness—and so there might, had the second philanthropist been a person of flesh and blood and not a creature of Morton's imagination. Morton gave his wife some type-written sheets containing items and a system of horizontal and perpendicular lines not unlike Angelica's budget book and he asked her to fill in the items from day to day. He would not let her forget, he said, but would go over the sheets every evening after he had finished telling her just how much he had spent.

One of the items of Morton's scheme was labeled "tears" and under this poor Peggy felt in duty bound—for Morton had accounted for his lunch money to a penny—to explain the cause for every tear she shed. The tears she spent over the frost-bitten geranium plant were in a measure excusable, for death even of a plant is a suitable cause of sorrow, but when she wept over the fact that she was not invited to a certain luncheon party she was in the wrong because the sorrow in that case was prompted by jealousy or personal pique.

Peggy had a hard time with the item marked "laughter" for it was Peggy's nature to laugh a little quite frequently and everytime she stopped to think that she was laughing and that she must remember to put it down in the list she was sobered so she stopped laughing. And it was hard sometimes to have to put down on that sheet for Morton's eyes that she had said "damn it" because the potatoes boiled dry; still there was an item for "profanity" and Morton had decided that "damn it" was as near to profanity as Peggy ever came.

One night—it was the night before Angelica's expected visit and Morton had been unusually severe with Peggy over the sheets, as indeed Peggy had been with Morton because he couldn't remember how much he tipped that day at luncheon—Peggy crumpled down over the sheets in tears. "We're not half so happy as we used to be—before we began to budget everything," she wailed. "I wish Angelica had never left the settlement and I wish your sour-hearted old friend—I know he is sour-hearted—was—as I just hate to keep accounts, I do, and I don't want you to tell me how much you spend."

Morton took a warm little hand from under the tear stained face and then raised the face and kissed away the tears.

"Shake, Peggy," he said. "We don't need any one's prescription for happiness, do we? And we are through with budgets for keeps."

"Forever," echoed Peggy, and she meant it.

Strained the Glass. The oldest inhabitant of Little Cockleton possessed a telescope he never used.

"Why don't you make use of it sometimes, James?" asked a neighbor.

"It used to be a good 'n," said James sorrowfully, "but it's broke now."

"Broken?" asked the neighbor. "Who did that?"

"Well," said James, "it was such a good 'n that I could see the old church steeple five miles away quite plain, but Joseph, the second, got the end of it and tried to make out the steeple of the Methodist chapel more'n ten miles away. He tried and tried and couldn't, so that strained my glass, and it's never been right since. Drat Joseph!"

Prefer Chamberlain's.

In the course of a conversation with Chamberlain's Medicine Co. representative today, we had occasion to discuss in a general way the merits of their different preparations. At his suggestion I take pleasure in expressing my estimation of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I have a family of six children and have used this remedy in my home for years. I consider it the only cough remedy on the market, as I have tried nearly all kinds.—Earl C. Ross, Publisher Hamilton County Republican-News, Syracuse, N. Y.

NO ARRESTS AFTER SUNDOWN

This Custom Gave One Native Merchant in India Chance to Baffle His Creditors.

It is a law throughout India that no native may be arrested after sundown, one object of the regulation being to protect what is known as the "dastar" which is a form of brigandage generally practiced by night. Just before sundown, a writer in the Buffalo Express, a local native merchant took advantage of the law in a fact which caused considerable amusement at which its victim, however, found difficulty in shrugging.

The native merchants do things in a big way and think nothing of dropping in casually and placing orders for goods to the tune of $50,000, but in some cases, footing the bill, when it is presented, is another matter. The merchant in question, who had contracted quite a sizable debt, proved so reluctant about settling that eventually the disgusted creditors swore out a warrant for his arrest. As soon as the debtor heard, however, that a warrant was out he foiled the intention to arrest him by the simple expedient of staying at home all day until after sundown. And then, by way of rubbing it in on his creditors, he had a carriage and pair brought round and spent the rest of the evening in driving back and forth in front of the house of the baffled and enraged creditor. It was impossible to break into his place and arrest him, because the law does not permit such a course to be followed in the case of debt. And all through the day the creditor, if he cared to look out of his upper windows, could see his annoying debtor sitting calmly in his garden smoking his pipe and beguiling himself in other exasperating fashions. He could, as a matter of fact, have paid at any time, for he was one of the richest men in the neighborhood, but he just obstinately wouldn't, nor did he until some weeks afterward, when he wanted to make a journey and had to start by day. Then he sent his agent around with the money, and thus closed the incident.

MANY NEGLECT THEIR EYES

May Be Conscious of Strain but Go Right on Doing Things That Make It Worse.

"A great many men who are well enough informed on other topics do not know the first principles of how to conserve their eyesight," Dr. Eugene L. Fisk is quoted in World's Work. "They may be conscious of eye strain and yet unconsciously go right on doing many things to increase that strain. Things such as these—reading a newspaper on the jiggly street car, working with a light directly behind them or directly in their faces, reading or working in too bright a glare or in a dim or flickering illumination. They do not realize that they might well limit their allowance of moving pictures. They do not know the harm in too brilliant a desk light. They buy worthless patent nostrums for the eye and have a positive dread about adopting glasses. The price they pay for all this often is extremely dear. It ranges from constant physical discomfort to loss of sight."

Drank With Care.

A gentleman happened to go into a seaside hotel to dine the other night. The hotel was rather full, so he was given a vacant place at a table already occupied. It did not take him long to become acquainted, and he chatted away merrily, in spite of the fact that he only drank water.

Seated opposite to him was an old gentleman whose face betokened him to be a heavy whisky drinker. He appeared to be particularly struck with the "water drinker," and when opportunity occurred he whispered across the table.

"You know, my doctor says water is an excellent thing, and I should drink a lot of it."

"Then do you?" asked the other.

"Oh, yes," said the old man. Then, nervously looking around, he added: "In the night! In the night!"—San Francisco News-Letter.

A Vacation.

An evangelist said in a temperance address in Boston:

"The booze even gets into men's vacations and tangles them up."

"A Manayunkier took the steamer for Boston with his wife. But the minute he got aboard he disappeared in the black, ill-smelling hole they called the bar."

"His wife, some hours later, hurried down to the bar and said to him: 'Oh, George, come on up and see the scenery. The hills and woods are just beautiful.'"

"Ah, what do I care about your hills and woods. Do you think I'm going to lose my vacation over hills and woods?"

Curiosity.

Some persons in high places were touched, once upon a time, with curiosity.

"It would be fun to see what sort of a living the world can make with one hand tied behind its back," they remarked and so saying started the debacle involving half the nations.

But their curiosity wasn't satisfied.

"Let's see if the world can make any sort of a living with both hands tied behind its back," they proposed, and drew the rest of the nations into the debacle.

Hostilities were prolonged during a number of years, but in consideration of what they settled in the event they were well worth while.—Exchange.

Shuddering.

Shuddering is done by clenching the jaw's and running a quiver down the spine. It is important to be able to shudder well at a time when there is so much news of a shuddering nature. A few moments spent each day in the simpler exercises of shuddering will soon make you proficient. Compose your features and sit quietly for a while. Then think of something horrible. You may not be able to shudder at first, but in time you will find you can shudder at any length on slight provocation. It is always embarrassing to be unable to shudder well when you are giving a sympathetic ear to a friend's account of his operation.—Detroit Journal.

The Son's Opinion.

The late Mr. Henniker Heaton's use of questions in the house of commons did not commend itself to all his family. One of his sons, a small midshipman, did not fail to express his views on the matter. One day, when the latter was home on leave, his father said to him:

"I am always very glad to get your letters, but I notice you never tell me anything of interest about the navy."

"No, thank you," replied the small midshipman; "too many of our fellows have had their careers simply ruined by their fathers asking questions in parliament!"

Expert Knowledge.

He—Do you know which is the most efficient arm of the service?

She—Of course, I do. It's the one they put the stripes on.

One Requirement Fulfilled.

Joey Brown, being an orphan, resided with one of his grandmothers. For a grandmother she was a very nagging old lady, or so Joey thought. Her hobby was cleanliness, and she was always lecturing Joey about cleaning his teeth before he went to bed. Not long ago she visited his other grandmother who, unfortunately, was afflicted with another kind of mania. As Joey was going to bed she said:

"Joey, have you read your Bible to-night?"

"No, ma'am," replied Joey. Then he added exultantly: "But I have cleaned my teeth."

TWICE PROVEN.

If you suffer backache, sleepless nights, tired, dull days and kidney and bladder disorders, don't experiment. Read this twice-told testimony. It's Gettysburg evidence—conclusively proven.

Mrs. Mary Ohler, 147 Hanover St., says: "I was troubled by weak kidneys for over a year. My back ached constantly and pains extended from my loins into my head. I had chills and dizzy spells and was bothered by my kidneys acting irregularly. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills were so highly recommended I got a box at the Peoples Drug Store and commenced their use. A few doses brought relief and after using them for a short time all symptoms of the trouble left."

AFTER PASSING YEARS.

At a later date, Mrs. Ohler said: "I heartily recommend Doan's Kidney Pills again and confirm all I had previously said about them. Doan's should be in every home."

Price 60c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Ohler has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

HER DESCRIPTION WAS LUCID

It Was Funny Hardware Clerk Couldn't Think Sooner What She Wanted, but Couldn't Name.

She stood before the hardware counter in the department store and her eye had a wandering look. It took in at a glance the various things displayed on the counter and then it wandered to the shelves.

"What can I show you?" asked the girl behind the counter.

"That's what I am trying to find of. I want to buy the kind of screw before I get home, and I don't know I can't remember. Anyhow, it's one of these little duds that are for the four things in one, you know. A of a thing, a screw, a nut, a washer, folds up and don't you know what I mean? One of these little duds, you are sure to find in every little table drawer, or on a shelf, or for they come in handy in so many ways and you—a funny little contraption that you can do as much with as you can with a hammer. It's a combination thingum-bob—and don't you know what I mean? It is funny you don't get the idea of it. Being in a store where you are probably selling them every day. I should think you would know right off what I mean. It's the commonest sort of a little rinkum, a combination affair that you open cans and pull out corks with—and—"

"You mean a combination cork-screw?"

"That's it! I knew I would remember the name of the little jigger, if I put my mind to it. Thank you. Yes, I am sure it is—a—a what do you call it? That's it! That's it! The very identical little squiggledom I was looking for. Funny you didn't remember the name of it sooner."
